1967 SPEEDWAY

Howard J. Lacy II Speedway High School
Speedway, Indiana
Volume 27

SPEEDWAY IS...

... many things to many people. It is a small town with police protection, a fire squad, and a park department. Speedway is Main Street, the shopping center, the water towers, and Lynhurst Drive. Speedway is the home of the 500 Mile Race, of modern industry, of small businesses. It is new apartments, 12 churches, and 19 stop lights.

One might say Speedway is a school of high caliber, of good athletics, of white brick, and of noisy convocations. Speedway is Zionsville Sectional Champs; it is blue slips, pink slips, and reams of United States history notes. It is biology, government, trigonometry classes.

Speedway is a football hero running 50 yards for the winning touchdown, a student giving a dramatic reading at a speech contest, a freshman pushing a sophomore into the swimming pool, and a cheerleader crying after the loss at the Regional Tourney.

Speedway may have one definition; it may be a dictionary in itself. One's awareness is needed. Speedway is ...

Landmarks and Modern Construction Identify Speedway

Since the arrival of Carl Fisher in 1905, Speedway grew and prospered. This year Speedway marked its fortieth year as an incorporated town. Seven schools, streets of friendly homes, two golf courses, and a blue water tower decorate the town. Speedway is the home of the famous 500 mile Race Track which has attracted crowds from around the world and has thrilled millions on radio and television. Besides entertainment, Speedway has rapidly become an industrial center. Numerous large companies provide varied opportunities for local residents. This thriving town of 11,000 has courageously resisted the threat of metropolitan government as the town has continued to grow and prosper showing just what Speedway is.

Powerama, Allison's contribution to the general public, is an educational exhibit featuring Allison engines and transmissions in action.

Typical of the great amount of construction taking place in Speedway is the new office complex erected on Crawfordsville Road.

Speedway Town Hall stands at 1450 North Lynhurst, as a symbol of independent municipal government.

"Gentlemen, start your engines!" In Speedway, the start of another 500 Mile Race is a climax to the excitement which grows steadily throughout the month of May.

S.H.S. Serves Both Students and Town

Having completed the fourth year in its new building, Speedway High School continued to excel in the eyes of students and parents. It was awarded a Special First Class Commission by the Indiana Department of Public Instruction; only 28 of 513 high schools in the state hold this rating. Speedway audiences were once again thrilled by the performances of the Student Theatre with comedies such as Stalag 17 and tragic dramas such as Medea. Sports were equally exciting as the basketball team made the first trip to the final game of the Regionals, and all major sports brought home winning seasons. The band also honored Speedway as they were named the outstanding high school band at the Veteran's Day Parade. S.H.S. continually strives to achieve even higher goals and standards.

Happiness is the 3:28 bell and freedom for 16 1/2 hours!

Serving the high school for four years, the well-equipped auditorium has been the scene of memorable performances such as that given by the combined choirs at a P.T.A. meeting.

Quiet for the moment, the parking lot seems to be recuperating from the fast and furious flood of cars that each school day brings.

Cindy Rumple pauses to enjoy the beauty of one of the many paintings presented to the school by Mrs. Howard J. Lacy II.

Speedway's ultra-modern gymnasium springs to life during the Plugs basketball game with Southport's Cardinals.

Work, Fun, Relaxation Are Key Words

Speedway is a town, and Speedway is a school—but, something seems to be missing. One ingredient gives life to a cold, impersonal building—the people. Yes, Speedway is people. The faculty, staff, and, most of all, the students make Speedway what it is. But, exactly what is it? On the first day of school, 790 students entered the building not knowing what Speedway is, and they would spend the next 36 weeks trying to solve the problem.

As a "welcome back" gift following an illness, Lawrence Thompson, principal, accepts a barometer presented to him by Floyd Troth on behalf of the faculty and staff.

"Think" is the word of the hour for Joyce DeWitt as she gives a dramatic interpretation at the Speedway Invitational Speech Meet.

All posture rules are thrown out the proverbial window as senior Steve Englert peruses the latest sports news.

at Speedway High School

Patti Engle and Gary McNeil become American Observers as they take their weekly excursion through the current events paper read by seniors in government class.

Pam Sedam, as Cinderella, diligently molds scraps into a ball gown.

Marsha Husser is "up in the air" at the thought of marrying the prince, Gary McNeil, as he searches for the owner of the famed glass slipper.

Backing up the football coaches, Joyce DeWitt vehemently urges students to stand behind their team at the pre-homecoming bonfire.

The "outer" side of a hop.

"What's next?" is the question asked Jim Seitz as he "spins the platters" at an after-game hop.

Maybe it isn't ham and eggs, but that doesn't seem to bother the faculty as they gobble donuts and hot chocolate at the Booster Breakfast sponsored by the cheerleaders.

S.H.S. Brought to Life by Spirit of Students, Faculty

With the caliber of Speedway students and faculty, the problem of "What is Speedway?" was quickly solved. Top students scholastically soon realized that Speedway was hard work. With new "computerized" report cards, a new honor-point system, and new national honor society standards staring at them, students resolved to buckle down, and realized they must get the "points" to excel. For a "select" group, the usual penalties were present, pink slips and ninth hours, along with the new one of haircuts. The caliber of Speedway students was shown throughout the year as others learned Speedway is sportsmanship—in everything—athletics, speech, music, and everyday occurrences. Yes, Speedway is people—people that make the school a living, healthy part of the community, and people who strive upward toward their goals. Speedway people will strive, seek, find, and never will yield.

Jane Johnson, 5'2", has always wondered what was in the top of her locker.

Team Teachers Instruct Future Grammarians

GRACE E. HINE, M.S., Butler University; Chairman, English Language; English.
DALE GLENN, M.S., Indiana University; English; Freshman Basketball Coach, Assistant Track Coach.
BETTY HUGHEL, B.S., Ball State University; English; Junior Sponsor.

Students indulge in theme writing while Mrs. Hine, Mr. Glenn, and Mr. Wagner are available to solve literary dilemmas in Honor English VII.

Each day Mrs. Hughel put a thought-provoking quotation on her chalk board.

Four years of English credit are required for graduation. The freshman year is fundamentally a semester of grammar and a semester of literature. During the second year, students are required to take speech. Term papers are usually introduced in junior English bringing headaches and reams of notes to all.

Seniors can take regular or honor fourth-year English, either first- or second-year journalism, or advanced speech. Honor English students are introduced to a special method of teaching—team teaching. Combining the three sections into one giant class in the activities room, Mrs. Hine taught composition with Mr. Glenn teaching vocabulary and Mr. Wagner teaching grammar. College-bound students can take honor fifth-year English. Delving into literary works from Greek tragedies to Shakespeare to modern writers, students learned how to place man in the universe.

ROSE KENDALL, M.S., Butler University; Developmental Reading.
AGNES SPENCER, M.A., University of Wisconsin; Journalism, English; Newspaper Sponsor.
N. ANDREW WAGNER, B.A., Marian College; English, Speech; Speech Activities, Drama.

While studying Greek and Roman literature in English, Karen Troth constructed the Trojan Horse as an art project.

Speedway Orators Begin with Simplicity

DON JOHNSON, M.S.,
Indiana State University;
Chairman, Speech and Dramatics; Speech and Theatre Arts; National Forensic League, National Thespian Society,
Student Theatre, Speaker's Bureau, Stage
Technicians.

Members of the advanced speech class thoroughly enjoy a classmate's reading.

Although few people have true "stage fright," many sophomore students became unnerved when they began giving speeches in English IV. Students were required to keep a "log" of their preparations for each speech from the time they got the idea to the day they gave the speech. In advanced speech, orators polished and repolished their declamations for speech contests held on week ends. Students also gave radio newscasts and disc jockey shows.

During second semester, students learned the "methods" of action. Each student was required to go through the emotions, ranging from apathy to hysterical laughter and apathy to hysterical fear, before others in the class. Fridays were set aside for the history of the theatre. Students gave reports on various men and women, who had an influence on the theatre and acting. Lessons in lighting, stage crew work, make-up, and scene design were included in Dramatics I.

Ginny Tyler and Tami Stewart enact Taterella with the potato head puppets they made in speech class.

Trying to adjust a spot, Randy Read, Cindy Rumple, and Ronnie Stewart stoop in the catwalk, located in the auditorium ceiling.

Students Excel in Foreign Tongues

German pupils can't say they forgot, as Phil Schoonover shows Kathy Conkle and Don Muir; everything in the room is labeled to prompt the forgetful ones.

GEORGE E. ROE, M.A., Ball State University; Chairman, Foreign Languages; German; German Club.

LEAH L. ABRAMS, B.S. in Ed.; Ohio University; German, English; Freshman Sponsor.

"Isn't this a small world!" With the countries of the world growing closer together every day, Speedway students learned the importance of being able to communicate with other lands. Realizing this fact, many students were stimulated and interested in comprehending and speaking their respective languages. They were helped by audio-visual aids, and taped dialogues in German and Spanish. These tapes acquainted students with the everyday conversation of the foreign language. While translating page after page of Julius Caesar in Latin, students never spoke Latin. Although it is a dead language, it is still very useful.

The I.U. Honors Program offered two Speedway seniors an opportunity to gain knowledge about the everyday life, customs, and language of Mexico and Germany. They spent their 1966 summer vacation studying in their respective lands. This year six other able students qualified for the privilege.

Mr. Roe prepares tapes and also transcribes both short wave and FM radio in the program preparation room near the language laboratory.

JUDY BUCKINGHAM, M.S., Indiana University; Spanish; Spanish Club, Boosters Club.

LILLIAM P. GUTIERREZ, Ph.D., University of Habana; Spanish; Spanish Club.

DONNA PRICE, B.S., Indiana University; Latin, English; Latin Club.

JAMES D. QUISENBERRY, M.A., Indiana State University; German, English; Future Teachers of America, Concessions.

Linda Hackett and Donna Tyler compare German and Spanish souvenirs brought back from their summer's study under the I.U. Honors Program.

Math Proves Good Mental Exercise

CHARLES L. NAY, M.S., Butler University; Chairman, Mathematics; Mathematics; Senior Sponsor.
PAUL L. GUERNSEY, M.S., Butler University; Mathematics, Guidance; Junior Co-Sponsor.

Two pupils in plane geometry class engage in a blackboard race to solve a cube root problem.

Incoming freshmen had many decisions to make. Among them was the choice of taking algebra or general math to fill the two-year math requirement. The following year, students must take either plane geometry or business math. With this new adventure in math, individuals taking geometry were exposed to the question of "another world." Mr. Simons proposed this situation of a two dimensional world many times during the year.

"I don't understand!" seemed to be the frustrated wail of many teen mathematicians as new concepts and ideas confronted students in all math classes. Speedway High School students had the opportunity to further their education by taking advanced algebra, solid geometry, trigonometry, analytical geometry, and calculus. This selection of higher mathematics coupled with good teachers provided the college-bound student with a wonderful opportunity.

As Paul Daniels explains an intricate calculus problem, Mr. Nay prepares to emphasize the point.

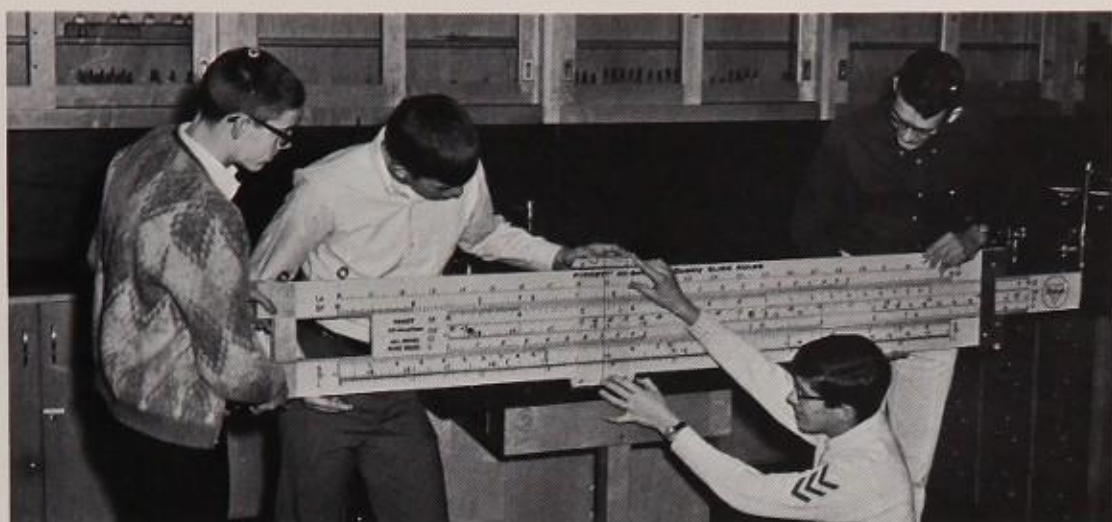

RALPH JOHNSON, M.S., Butler University; Mathematics; Varsity Football Coach.
JAMES SIMONS, M.A.T., Indiana University; Mathematics; Varsity Tennis Coach.
HELEN WELBORN, M.S., Butler University; Mathematics; National Honor Society Sponsor.

Candy Walker uses temporary facilities in the new math room made when Study 207 was divided to provide another classroom.

Science Reveals Life's Wonders

Richard Brooks insists, "If you can't understand how the slide rule works now, you never will!" to classmates Brad Black, John Allen, and Tom Kinney.

EDWARD L. FRAZIER, M.A.T., Indiana University; Chairman, Biological Sciences; Biology, Zoology; Student Council, Sophomore Sponsor.
REGINA KROFT, M.S., Purdue University; Chairman, Physical Sciences; Chemistry.

"You don't bisect a frog!" protested Rick Glidewell to Carolyn Green as she proceeded with ruler and compass on her first biology project.

JONATHAN O. BROOKS, M.S., Indiana State University; Physics, Mathematics; Science Club.
WILLIAM L. CLARK, M.S. in Ed., Butler University; Biology; Varsity Club, Baseball Coach.

Because science affects one's way of living, and since scientists have increasing influence in all areas of human society, it is necessary to understand what science is. The science department of Speedway High School provided students with the advantage of well-equipped laboratories and excellent teachers.

Freshmen biology pupils spent hours staring into microscopes looking at the one-celled amoeba or dissecting frogs. Zoology offered students a chance to learn more about the animal kingdom. The thrill of scientific discovery attracted many juniors and seniors to chemistry. They learned that chemistry is the study of the nature of matter and changes in the composition of matter. The class periods of physics pupils were filled with studies of motion, forces, work, and magnetism. Advanced physics was offered to students who attained a B average in Physics I and II and who had an interest in electricity.

The world appeared clothed in greater beauty because Speedway science students increased their comprehension of nature's unity as well as its complexity.

From Latin to biology, Room 242 had a rapid about face.

Correct data and observation were important to Steve Gaalema, Max Tapscott, John Higbie, Dusty Lovick, Denny Warner, and Jim Payne in their work with the optical bench in Physics I-II.

Society Is Explained by Experts

DALE WELLER, M.S., Purdue University; Chairman, Social Studies; Government.
JAMES G. BURKHART, M.A., Indiana University; World History, Orientation; Freshman Sponsor.

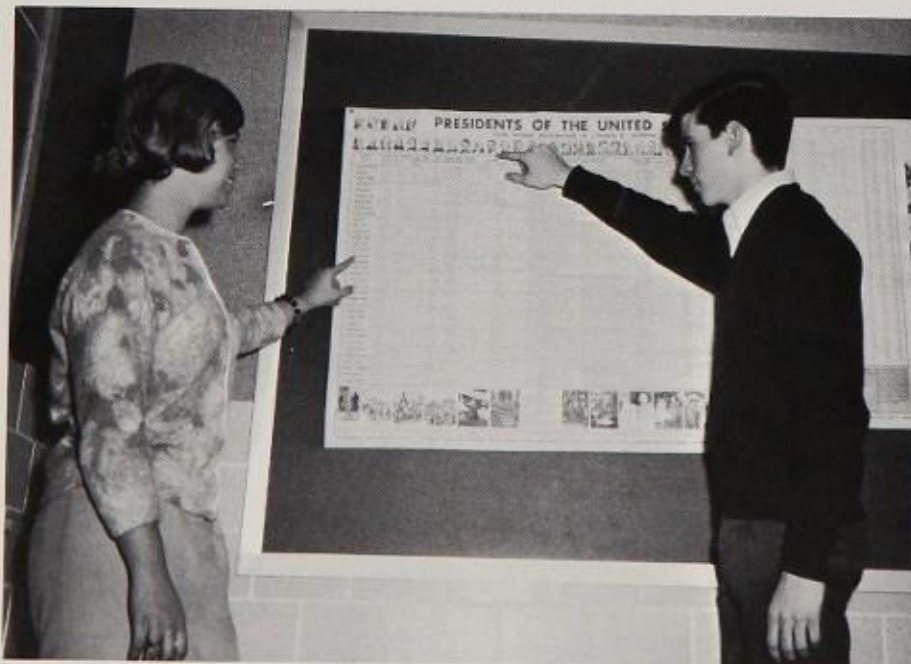

Mr. Pollard gazes into his crystal basketball, while psychology students read each others' palms. Both hoped to see a bright future for the basketball team.

BRUCE HUTCHINGS, M.S., Indiana University; Social Studies; Reserve Football Coach, Reserve and Freshman Wrestling Coach.
MORRIS POLLARD, M.S., Indiana University; U.S. History, Psychology; Varsity Basketball Coach, Reserve Baseball Coach.
CLYDE SALLEE, M.S., Butler University; Economics, Psychology, Health; Athletic Director.

World Geography taught by Mr. Burkhart interested Jim Baker, Dave Howard, and Linda Kirchhoff as they found the Asian trouble spots.

"Who was the 15th president?" inquired Diana Ray and Ted Fidger as they tried to find out on Mr. Hutchings' presidential chart.

Social studies is the study of social relationships and functionings of society. All students graduate from Speedway with a minor in social studies.

World history gives freshmen and sophomores an idea of the cultural, literary, historical, and governmental backgrounds of the world. Required of juniors is United States history. Seniors delved into the complexities of federal, state, and local governments and learned to solve even the most difficult income tax problems. Mr. Weller also taught the honor class, Governments of the World.

Psychology's main objective was to help students to better understand themselves. Latin American Neighbors utilized a college text to show pupils the importance of good relations with southern neighbors. World Geography presented the world-wide aspects of economic, political, and regional geography as they relate to man's activities.

Students Prepare for Business World

Peggy Lewter and Candy McCord's pens fly in shorthand class as they push for higher speed.

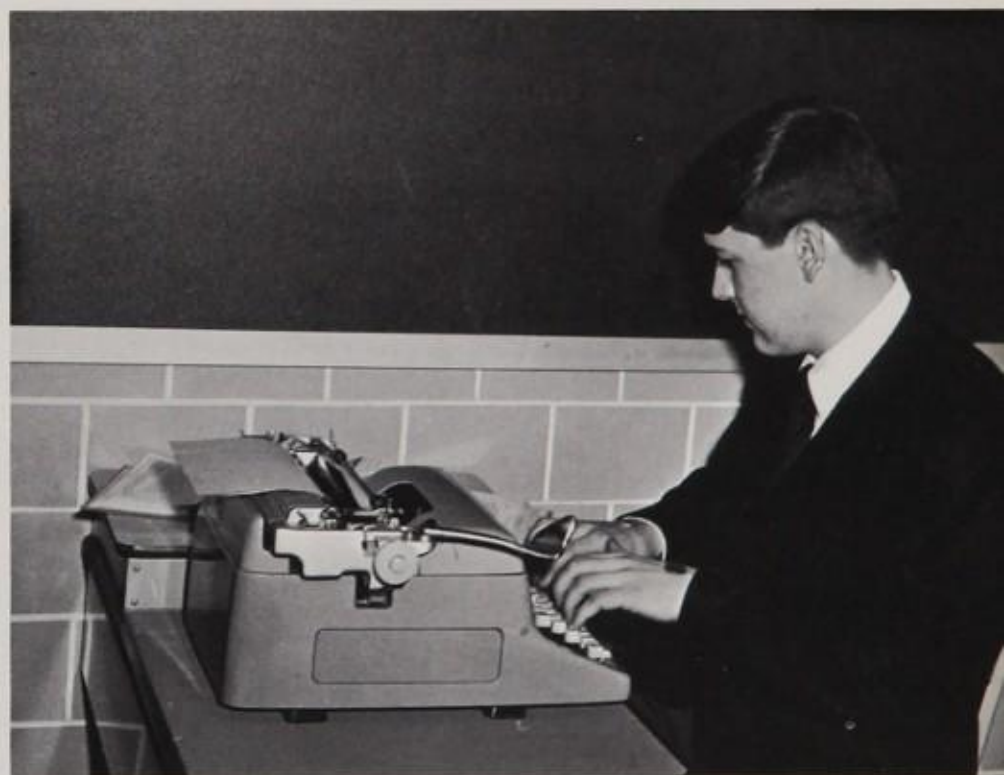

Drilling on their f-g-f space and j-h-j space, beginning typists soon learned to maneuver through timed writings with ease. Advanced typing students, after mastering the use of the electric typewriter, became acquainted with invoices, statements, order blanks, and other business forms. To many first semester students, shorthand outlines seemed more like hieroglyphics than translatable symbols. Second-year enthusiasts found how useful shorthand was in their everyday lives.

Office practice enabled girls, seeking positions in the business world, an opportunity to learn to operate various office machines. Working hard day after day on their sets, students found that bookkeeping wasn't as easy as they once thought. To receive a passing grade each student had to satisfactorily complete a single proprietorship set and a partnership set. Speedway students interested in business careers have an excellent opportunity to further their knowledge in any of the business courses offered.

Mike Schindler and Barby Powers hopefully verify the equality of the debits and credits in their bookkeeping sets.

Trusting that "practice makes perfect," Scott McClelland types with quarters on his wrists for better posture.

REUBEN G. FOLAND, M.S., Indiana University; Chairman, Business Education; Business Education.
DEANNA LAMBERT, B.S., Indiana State University; Business Education; Cheerleaders' Sponsor.
LOIS METZGER, M.A., Ball State University; Business Education, Journalism; Yearbook Sponsor.

Future Homemakers Learn Their Trade

JUDITH RIES, B.S., Ball State University; Chairman, Home Economics; Homemaking; Future Homemakers of America.

"Dressmaker, dressmaker, make me a dress!" is the fervent plea of Jeanie Parker and Marsha Semich.

"The way to a man's heart is through his stomach." Many Speedway High School home economic majors believed that trite phrase as they concluded their third or fourth year of homemaking. The first-year homemakers furthered their basic knowledge in the planning, preparing, and serving of hopefully delicious meals. The selection of material, the cutting of the pattern, and the final stitches contributed to the learning of the fundamentals of sewing. Good grooming was also a part of their studies. Child care, money management, first-aid, food preparation, and clothes construction were studies in which second-year homemakers were trained. Studying vocations, answering questions on dating and marriage, and planning the furnishing of one's own home with the right colors and accessories were very important to the girls in the third- and fourth-year classes. Interior design and home planning were also courses which gave the homemakers a forecast of tomorrow.

Marilyn Edington, Linda Ward, and Susan Maple hope the dinner prepared by Debbie Maloney is m-m-m good.

"If I could only make the kind of pies Grandmother used to bake!" moans Bobbie Miner to Terry Spencer and Betty Whitaker.

Students Stress Manual Ability

New to Speedway this year, Purdue graduate Bill DeVine became head of the Industrial Arts Department. Mechanical drawing is required of all students before taking any shop courses. This year there were three beginning classes learning to draw fundamental objects, read blueprints, and progressing to more difficult things such as isometric, auxiliary, and section drawing.

After mechanical drawing, students can enroll in advanced drawing, architectural or machine, which alternate yearly, or general shop. This year architectural drawing was offered, and several of the boys plan to further their studies in architecture at colleges next year.

A practical shop course is offered to all students completing the mechanical drawing prerequisite. Students learn about such things as welding, woodworking, metalworking, plastics, and machine operation. This is achieved through the use of common hand tools and varied power tools such as sanders, polishers, saws, lathes, milling machines, and drill presses.

Rebecca Okken, the only girl taking Architectural Drawing, prepares her plan with a pencil and, of course, an eraser.

Dick Price displays expert craftsmanship on the wood lathe in General Shop I.

Hardworking students in shop discovered how Jack built (and furnished) his house.

WILLIAM T. DeVINE, B.S., Purdue University; Chairman, Industrial Arts; Industrial Arts.

Music Fills the Halls at Speedway

Mr. Wise told Roger Hershberger to open his mouth wider, and Roger faithfully obeys.

Although many Speedwayites are talented in music, it isn't necessary to have extraordinary ability to enroll in the classes in this department. Under the instruction of Robert Wise, Choral-aires, the beginning chorus, began acquiring qualities of the varsity choral groups, Modern-aires and Sparkle-aires.

The Speedway High School band performed magnificently in many parades during the course of the year, ending with the "500" parade. After being in charge of the varsity band for many years, Dalton Wicker has decided to spend full time in guidance counseling in the future. Hoping to be promoted, the cadet band members tried diligently to improve their tone. All music groups spent many hours of hard practice for PTA meetings, convocations, and festival music programs.

Speedway High School students wanting to acquire a music major took Music Literature or Theory and Harmony. Composing their own vocal and instrumental arrangements, class-members became proficient in constructing melodies and songs. Through adding a new course, Music Literature, students were given the opportunity to learn more about famous composers such as Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms. The new stereo console helped with the homework of listening to the symphonies of the various musicians.

DALTON H. WICKER, M.S., Butler University; Chairman, Music; Music, Director of Guidance.
ROBERT L. WISE, M.S., Indiana University; Music.

Cathy Wacker, Jim Muir, Jim Seitz, Alan Davis, and John Baldauf practice in the hall for band contest.

Seniors Becky Sutherlin and Alan Davis compose their own musical score for Theory and Harmony class.

Long Hours, Hard Work Make Artists

REBECCA D. YUNKER, B.S., Western Michigan University; Chairman, Art; Art. (First Semester).

MICHAEL A. BROWN, B.S., Herron School of Art; Art. (Second Semester).

Decorating the showcases at Christmas, art classes do an impressive job and help everyone get in the spirit of the season.

"The principles of artistic design and construction," a definition given to art, describes Speedway's art department well. Art students made paper sculptures to fit various names of poems, plays, and classics. Classes built precarious hanging mobiles out of coat hangers, string, and paper. Art students did several sketches of still life and nature settings. During the Christmas season art classes divided into groups and used their ingenuity to design and to construct Christmas settings for showcases and lobbies.

In the second semester, Michael Brown replaced Rebecca Yunker as art instructor. Second semester classes used toothpicks to make designs, which were shown in the northwest display case. Speedway High School offers excellent opportunities to students interested in art.

Santa, being buried by some of his packages, was one of the scenes which decorated the entrances during the holidays.

Placing the final touches, Marla McCormick proves her ability in Art III-IV as she completes a portrait.

Charlotte Linsey displays her talent in paper sculpture entitled "How many times can a man turn his head and pretend he just doesn't see."

A bulletin board showing "Studies in Black and White" shows the versatility of the art students.

Today's Youth Work on Fitness

Bicycling is only one of the exercises boys do in gym when they cannot go outside.

BERT H. ZIMMERMAN, M.A., Ball State University; Chairman, Physical Education; Physical Education; Varsity Swim Team, Scuba Club, Boys Intramurals.

BARBARA RUDICEL, B.S., Ball State University; Physical Education, Swimming; GAA Sponsor.

ALICE ANN UNDERWOOD, M.S., Indiana University; Physical Education; Girls' Swim Team.

Boys and girls spent a period every other day vigorously exercising in the required gym class. Boys and girls both use the track, play outdoor sports, and learn tumbling. Girls spend one six weeks learning how to dance and walk gracefully while boys work on the fundamentals of wrestling. Realizing the value of water knowledge, swimming instructors taught a variety of strokes, dives, and water safety to attentive students. Boys and girls took a test at the beginning of the year in accordance with government standards. They took the same test at the end of the year to see if they had improved themselves physically through the year.

Physical education is used not only as recreation but a pressure release for stores of tension and anxieties. The work is sometimes difficult and challenging, but the rewards prove the worth of the efforts made.

Gary "Juan Marichal" McNeil winds up as he prepares to pitch another no-hitter.

Ferociously slashing the air, Mark Hermerding strikes out as the ball whizzes past.

Girls get in the swim of things as they practice their stroke in swimming class.

Qualified Teachers Give Student Guidance

JAMES L. CRUMLEY, M.S., Butler University; Driver Education, Physical Education, Biology, Health and Safety; Freshman Football, Reserve Basketball.

FRANK W. HAMILTON, M.S., Indiana University; Physical Education, Driver Training; Varsity Wrestling.

Mr. Hamilton seems perplexed as to how driver training students end up parking diagonally when practicing parallel parking.

Scott Musgrave and George Minix try to keep John, their new Health and Safety buddy, from getting cold on crisp winter days.

"Get on your mark! Get set! Go!" were familiar words to Driver's Training students, as they learned the art of changing a tire. In classroom sessions student drivers learned the mechanics of the automobile. Films depicting what can happen when a driver loses control of his car or falls asleep at the wheel were shown to students. At the end of the course, drivers were given certificates to show they had passed the class satisfactorily.

In health and safety classes, sophomores became acquainted with the many bones and muscles in the human body. Suggestions on how good grooming and balanced diets help one's physical and mental health were emphasized.

Orientation was a vital course for freshmen. In orientation, students learned the rules and regulations of Speedway High School. Requirements for graduation from high school and for admission to college were stressed. Freshmen also studied occupations and professions that they might choose to follow in later years.

Orientation students make use of Guidance Office materials in planning their sophomore curriculum.

Quality Staff Produces Quality Paper

Marsha Husser inspects a page for errors as Dick Stout, Dusty Lovick, and Joe Croney operate the journalism department's new A.B. Dick offset machine.

Although the first six weeks of working on the SPEEDWAY SPEEDETTE did not seem fruitful to beginning journalists as they did not put out a paper, they later saw how valuable these weeks were. Students learned to spell correctly the name of every student and staff member at Speedway. They took turns as editors and staff to see how each phase of the paper was produced. At the end of the six weeks, the class elected their editors. The remaining students served under different editors as they were needed.

Journalists were shown how to run the A. B. Dick offset press, a new printing machine that was added to the newspaper department. This machine allowed the staff to use pictures and varied colors of ink more easily. The aims of newspapers and newspaper editing were well learned by the Speedette staff.

Section editors and assistants, Scott McClelland, Denny Warner, Dudley Burge, Linda Weiss, Jane Keating, John Baldauf, and Jack Alkire pour through articles to put together the school newspaper. In the background, Joe Croney, editor, lends Tom Smith a hand at scoping. (Bev Wells was absent.)

Miss Spencer, sponsor, gives directions to exchange workers Rick Prasuhn, Kathy Chaleff, Gena Cox, and Nikki Comsa.

Pam Miller, Bobbi Piper, and Francie Tomlinson type stencils from the prepared dummy copies.

Yearbook Compiles History for S.H.S.

Yearbook literary staff members, Mark Hindsley, Jane Leo, and Cindy Rumple, and Sports Editor Neil Stott seek inspiration for the informative and entertaining articles they produce.

Cooperation and hard work made Speedway's yearbook, the 1967 SPEEDETTE, another successful undertaking. Editor Kathy Smith and her staff of eight tried to make this year's annual even better than last year's first-place rated yearbook. Sponsor Lois Metzger aided the staff continually with her wide expanse of yearbook background and knowledge.

Starting off by selling ads to help pay for the yearbook, journalism students progressed through the year taking individual picture money, selling yearbook subscriptions, taking pictures, writing articles, and laying out pages. Slowly but surely the annual took shape. Staff members ground out forty pages per deadline to meet production requirements. The pace quickened near the end of the year as things began to pile up.

Finally, the pictorial history of the school year '66-'67 was finished. The crew gave a sigh of relief, for as the school year was completed, so was the yearbook.

Working in the dark room, Jim Bailey and Mike Sims experiment with the enlarger.

Editors Dave Graves and Kathy Smith busily lay out pages and select pictures for the 1967 Speedette.

Homecoming Proves a High Point of Year

Senior homecoming queen, Lynn Kurtz, reigns over the festivities at the Mooresville football game, the crowning even of her year's activities.

Enthusiastic fans watch the homecoming eve bonfire slowly die after having been touched off early by "itchy fingers."

Contesting for the honor of homecoming queen, seniors Nancy Zeph, Donna Tyler, and Diana Lippard give voters a difficult choice.

The pick of the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes for homecoming princesses were Connie Boswell, Ruth DeWitt, and Tammy Griffith.

Marching Plugs Led Band Flag Corps

Something new was added to the band this year—two drum majors. Kurt Young and Linda Hackett were the lucky ones to lead the band during halftime routines, parades, and other band activities.

Golden girl Peggy Lewter performed solo routines with the band on all occasions.

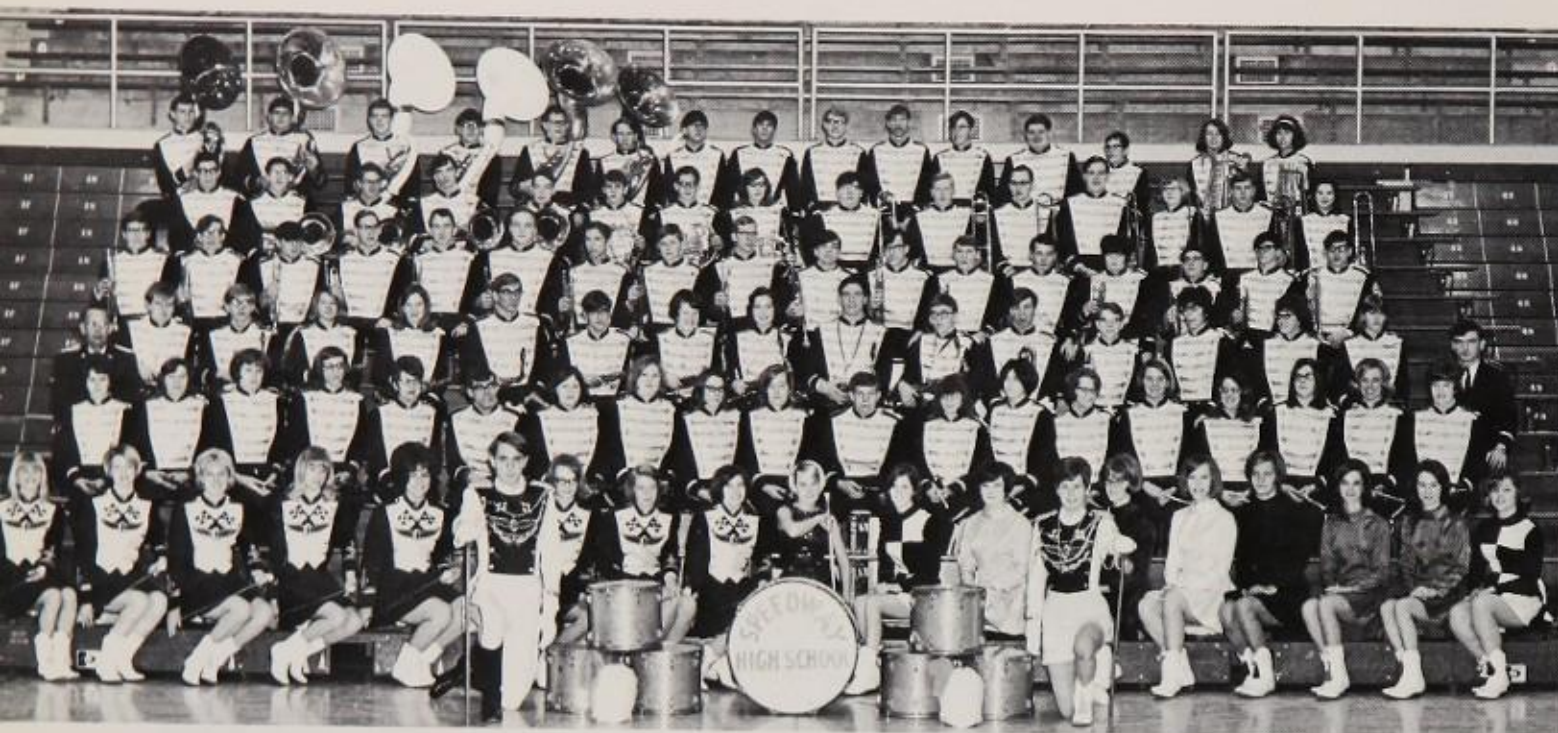

Sporting white rifles, the American flag, and the Indiana state flag, Diana Crain, Ruth Anne Gallatin, Karen Troth, and Cathie Doak march ahead of the band in the honor guard.

Donna Hamer, Carol Stewart, Donna Atkinson, Mary Reed, Karen Kirby, Janet Parks, Jean Thoma, and Barbara Guiou had matching uniforms and flags representing the flags of the Indianapolis "500."

After a two-hour break to play for the Purdue Boilermakers, band members were anxious (?) to get back to classes.

One hundred three varsity band members met two weeks prior to the beginning of school to practice marching and work up a half-time routine for the first home football game. October 8, bandsmen participated in Band Day at Indiana University and marched in a sesquicentennial parade at Brownstown.

Besides participating in six parades, giving Purdue a good-luck send-off to the Rose Bowl, and helping present the March PTA meeting, the band also entered band contest. During the annual Band Dinner in April, Mr. Wicker honored the 30 seniors. The end of the year was climaxed as the band marched in the 500 Festival Parade on May 28 and was one of 33 select bands to circle the track on Memorial Day.

Pep Band was made up of 42 members selected from the varsity band. Mr. Wicker, Mr. Wise, and student teacher Mr. Horaho took turns directing the band with their 35-number repertoire. Many songs included the new and unique sound of the Tijuana Brass. Home basketball games were highlighted by the original routines of varsity twirlers.

Freshman and sophomore students, eager to improve their vocal talents, enrolled in Choral-aires, an all-school choir. The main goal of Choral-aires is to increase each singer's range and to polish his already acquired talents. After repeated practice under the direction of Sponsor Robert Wise, the choir sang "Gonna Build a Mountain" and "Gloria" at the Choral Festival, held each year in Speedway's auditorium. The festival marked the singing debut for most of the members of Choral-aires. Many students showed great promise and were promoted to one of the varsity choirs.

Beginning instrumentalists not promoted to varsity band from eighth grade are placed in the reserve, or cadet band. Under the careful direction of Robert Wise, the eighteen bandmen became more adept in playing their chosen instruments.

During fall and warm spring days, eighth period band became militarized as Mr. Wise and student teacher Charles Horaho drilled the small but eager group in the fundamentals of marching, drill commands, and playing while marching. This was a big help to those who were promoted into varsity band and lacked veteran band experience.

"Practice makes perfect" could easily be the motto that Modern-aires, the glee club, endeavored to follow. Each school day during eighth period the girls' sweet tones could be heard echoing in the music department. The girls chosen to be in Modernettes, the select few from Modern-aires, worked many long hours outside of class to make their "baker's dozen" a success.

At the Choral Festival several girls "let down their hair" to produce humorous skits that left the audience rolling in the aisles. To highlight the year, the seniors in glee club put on a variety show for the rest of the choir. This year marked the beginning of a new ceremony in Modern-aires, one the choir hopes will become a tradition. The choir held a special performance so seniors could hand down their robes to the girls who were promoted to take their places.

Bosom buddies Karen Casper and Jane Keating perform a rousing number for the Winter Choral Festival.

Harmony and sweet melody is the objective of the varsity choir, Sparkle-aires, under the direction of Robert Wise. In order to perform at convocations, choral festivals, and PTA functions, the Sparkle-aires vocalized with vigor during fifth period every day in order to present the excellent varsity quality of the Sparkle-aires.

The Noteworthy's, representing Speedway High School by entertaining at numerous programs in the community, is a select group of sixteen Sparkle-aires chosen each year by the director. The Noteworthy's continued the precedent of obtaining a first-place medal at the Indiana State Music Contest. This year marked the initiation of the Swing Choir, composed of 24 singers. They swung to first place at the Indiana State Music Contest in the division of the Swing Choir.

Arising at 4 a.m. on Saturday is quite an accomplishment; yet the reward comes as one walks onto the stage to receive a well-deserved ribbon. The National Forensic League is an honorary organization which participates in Saturday speech contests between October and April. Students compete in categories of dramatic declamation, humorous interpretation, poetry, radio, original oratory, oratorical declamation, boys and girls' extemporaneous, and discussion.

Seventeen NFL sectional winners received the right to attend the Regional Speech Contest. With three members placing in the State Speech Finals, Speedway orators proved their proficiency in speaking. Don Johnson, sponsor, was pleased that 152 degrees were attained and 118 ribbons were won.

Honoring Thebus, the ancient Greek actor and playwright, the National Thespian Society indicates the interest of students in dramatics. Becoming a member in this national honorary is an achievement, for each person must prove himself a worthy candidate. Ten points must be accumulated through 100 hours of painting a canvas wall, putting on a fake beard, playing the leading role, walking across the stage, or building a papier-maché tree. When initiation was held in the spring, 33 new members were inducted into the society.

Being the largest in membership and one of the most active organizations, Student Theatre projects were enjoyed by many. Members helped achieve the success of six productions. They participated on stage crew, various committees, and some acted on stage. Student Theatre is a drawing card for those interested in the methods of acting, set design, make-up application, and lighting fundamentals.

Under the direction of Don Johnson, the drama Medea, the hilarious comedy Stalag 17, and two one-act plays were all well-received. Andrew Wagner produced two excellent plays, See How They Run and the fantasy Cinderella. Student Theatre members also helped the music department with their 1967 musical Damn Yankees. With 125 teens gaining knowledge of the stage, Student Theatre is a worthwhile organization.

Wagner Stages First Play

Miss Skillon (Jane Keating) is the proverbial "skeleton in the closet" when she topples out as Rev. Humphrey (Guy Roush) opens the door.

Rev. Toop (Ronnie Stewart), chased by a criminal, leaps over Miss Skillon, who has passed out from an "over dose" of liquor.

Knowing makeup to be an important part of the theatre, Mary Ann Lyon carefully applies eye liner to Doug Rosebrock for See How They Run.

"Ow! Me bloomin' girdle!" yowls Ida, the maid (Cathy Hutchison), as she primps before going out for a night on the town.

Not knowing who is the real vicar, an escaped criminal (Gary McNeil) holds everyone in the vicarage captive at gun point.

Students Enact Euripide's Tragedy

As she begins to lose her mind, Medea (Joyce DeWitt) stares expressionlessly at the sky while she plans the death of Jason's new bride.

The tutor (Karin Kyle) listens breathlessly as the nurse (Donna Troutman) tells of Medea's agony.

Seeing his sons, Jason (Joe Yanoska) describes the trips they will take.

Hating Jason so much that she slaughtered their children (Gary McCormick and Billy Glant), Medea gazes vengefully at Jason.

Women of Corinth (Pam Wegener, Chris McMahon, and Nikki Comsa) look on in fear as Jason's slave (Claudia Ryden) tells Medea of a girl burning in a cloak of fire.

Boys Cop Cast for Stalag 17

Sampling the soup brought to the barracks for dinner, Stosh (Roger Hershberger) decides it is more suitable for shaving than eating.

Fighting desperately to get away, Price (Bob Price), a German spy, is stopped with a knife by Hoffy (Earl Woodard).

Trying to find where he has hidden an escaped prisoner, the German officer (Mike Potter) threatens to beat barracks chief Hoffy.

Tripping the light fantastic to one of the two records they have, Animal (Scott McClelland) and Stosh celebrate Christmas Eve.

After moving Herb (Scott Blind) and bathtub onto the table, Stosh and Animal sing "A Pritty Gail" to him.

One-Act Comedies Provoke Many Laughs

Cindy Rumpie, the wicked old grandma in Fumed Oak, gets a wet awakening as Guy Roush throws a pitcher of water while Jeana Hubbard and Peggy Chambers watch.

Diane Hoagland recalls her childhood in Good Neighbors as Linda Hackett listens intently.

"And they lived happily ever after." Cinderella, portrayed by Pam Sedam, looks in the eyes of her Prince Charming, Gary McNeil.

With Peggy Chambers covered with tomato sauce, a sniffing Jeana Hubbard, and a witch of a Cindy Rumpie, Guy Roush announces to his family that he is going to Australia.

"I bet it will fit my foot!" smugly asserts evil step-sister Marsha Husser. Nikki Comsa strains to make the shoe fit with Cinderella's help as their mother Lynn Tackitt looks on.

Convos Relieve Everyday Routine

"What do I do now?" asks steeplejack assistant Pat Seedsman as the climbing belt lacks necessary inches to encircle George Heaney's midsection.

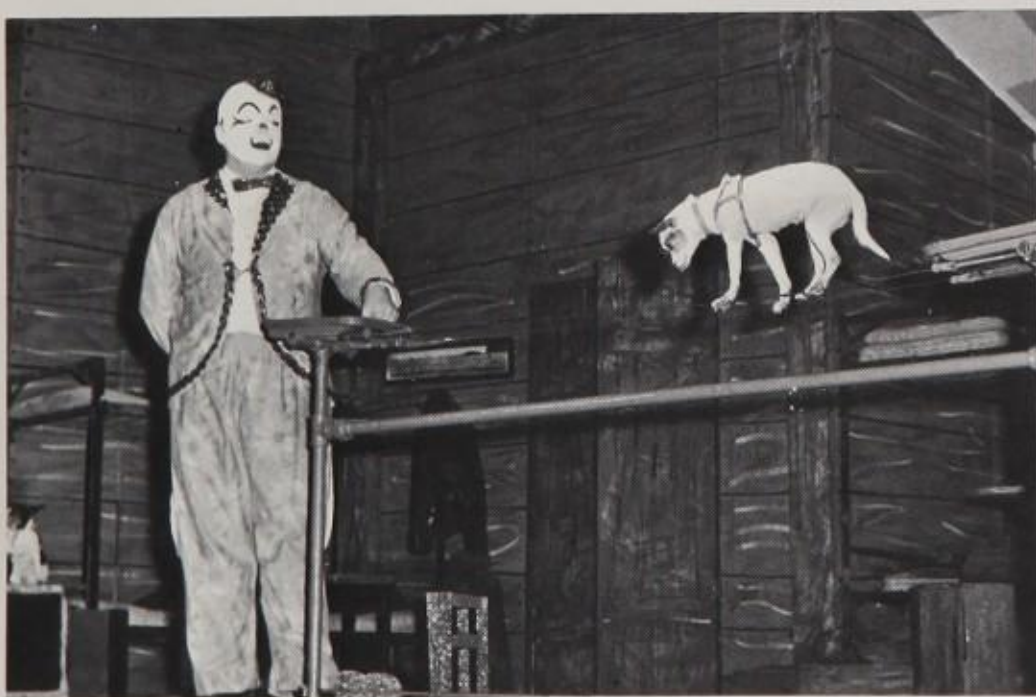

In the convo presented by the United States Navy Glee Club, the repertoire ranged from the Navy fight song to a barbershop quartet.

Steeplejack Lee Quinn offers expert instruction to Mac Hubbard as he attempts to master the art of flagpole climbing.

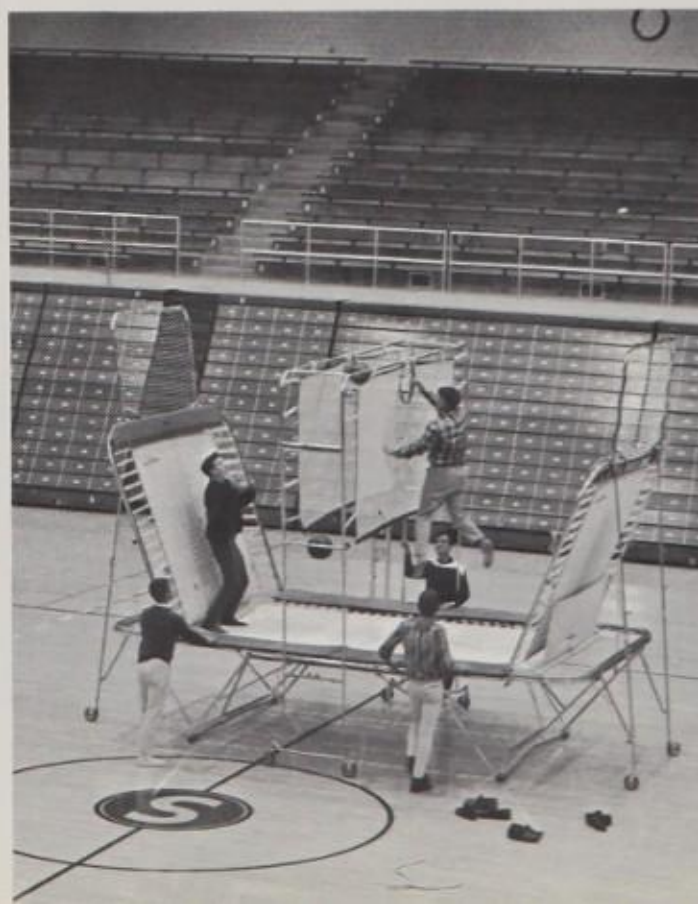

Every aspect of the clown—from their history to the application of makeup—was presented in a March convo by "Sparkles" the Clown.

In full clown attire, "Sparkles" displays the talent of his dogs as the white terrier cautiously walks the high wire.

Spaceball was introduced in the first convo of the year and displayed fast-moving and high-jumping action.

Cunningham, B. Turnbaugh, E. Woodard, J. Ehlebracht, D. Bennett.

With a change in the honor roll qualifications at Speedway, National Honor Society standards were also amended. Present freshmen, and all classes thereafter, must average 18 honor points per semester to be scholastically eligible for membership. However, Character, Leadership, and Service are other requisites for an honor student.

Serving as the voice of the student body, the Student Council has been active this year in providing a representative to the Teen Guide Council, and in planning the 1966 Homecoming. They organized the Christmas convocation at which Reverend Grottick, pastor of Speedway Methodist Church, spoke; the choirs concluded the program with the traditional "O Holy Night."

By approving dances, arranging the cheerleading election, helping with the Christmas decorations, and various other student functions the council proved their creditability. Realizing the old constitution was out-moded, members of the group created a new constitution which was submitted for student body approval. Student Council Week to honor administration, faculty, custodians, cooks, and students accomplished one of the council's main purposes: to develop the attitude of, and practice in, good citizenship.

Excelling Students Honored at Programs

Bill Cantwell lights the last of the four candles in the traditional induction ceremony for the new members of the National Honor Society.

At the Honor Day program, Bonnie Turnbaugh receives the Valedictorian award after twelve years of hard work and determination.

Linda Hackett becomes the third member of her family to receive the John Phillip Sousa Award presented by Mr. Wicker.

Charles Engel reminds new Honor Society members of their duties and responsibilities.

Donna Tyler accepts the Salutatorian award, finishing the year as the second highest senior.

Each new member of the Honor Society receives a card and pin signifying his membership.

Though one of the smallest groups, Science Club proved to be one of the most intellectual clubs at Speedway. Meeting the first, third, and fifth Monday each month at 7 p.m., the eight active members worked on physics experiments and individual projects under the direction and supervision of physics teacher, Jonathan Brooks. The highlight of the year was a convocation sponsored by the club at which Professor Harold Hughes of Indiana State University spoke. A panel of advanced physics students provided a background on stage for the speaker.

"Welcome to German Club" greeted new members at a party held in their honor at the beginning of the year. Students wanting to have fun and to learn the customs of the Germans took an active part in German Club. One of the favorite activities was seeing slides taken by Sponsor James Quisenberry and Linda Hackett while on their trips to Germany. Members sold booster buttons at tourney time to "boost" school spirit. German Club subscribes to a German magazine, Bunte, which is sent to the school library for use of the student body. To end the year, German Club members and sponsors Mr. Roe and Mr. Quisenberry had a picnic at Brown County State Park.

Languages of Past and Present Studied

Senors and senioritas secured knowledge of Mexico, Spain, Central and South America through attending the Spanish Club's bi-monthly meetings. In a fiesta atmosphere, the Christmas party was fun-filled with games and refreshments. The climax of the party was the breaking of the pinata, a candy-filled donkey.

Members learned the ways and customs of Spain as Sister Thomas Aquinas from Saint Agnes showed slides and gave an interesting itinerary of her trip. A special meeting conducted entirely in Spanish at the home of Mrs. Gutierrez concluded with a sing-along of serenades. At a delicious and exciting feast at the Spanish Villa in Indianapolis, members learned the value of glasses of ice-cold water.

Although this year's Latin Club was the smallest ever, the members had quite an active year. One of the highlights of the club's activities was the showing of slides by Mr. Barcio. On January 12, Mr. Barcio showed slides he had taken of Rome. He returned on February 23 to show more slides of Pompeii and Naples. His program included shots of these cities as they are now and as they were at the time of their glory. Upon Mrs. Price's resignation, Mrs. Grady graciously took over as sponsor of Latin Club so that its activities would not have to cease.

Future Teachers of America—that's what 14 members of this club plan to be. After becoming affiliated with the National FTA, the club received its charter and was officially recognized. Several members wrote songs and submitted them to a state FTA-sponsored contest. Five students and James Quisenberry, sponsor, went to the state FTA convention at Pike High School.

As the main aim of the club is to acquaint students with and promote teaching, FTA sponsored cadet teachers in the Speedway grade schools. Sponsoring two after-game hops gave the club the needed revenue for a $100 scholarship which was awarded to Alan Davis. Beautiful Brown County State Park was the scene of the annual picnic.

Interested girls hoping to create future happy homes joined the Future Homemakers of America. Initiating the year was the long-awaited homemade candy sale heartily greeted by hungry students. With a beautiful cake and conversation, the Valentine party proved to be the highlight of the year. Mrs. Ann Cullom, a former model, spoke to the girls on manners, posture, and expression. Rounding out the year, the district meeting of the Future Homemaker Clubs was a fun-filled and friendship-making day at Columbus, Indiana. The annual FHA pitch-in picnic concluded the groups activities.

"Dance, you slaves, dance!" were Mr. Clark's orders to Varsity Club members at their annual Slave Dance. For a short time, Speedway students regressed to ancient days and men were bought and sold. Only the price was lower—a mere ten cents! For something different, the club planned a greased-pig chase to be held on the football field. But the weather failed to cooperate, and the chase had to be canceled. As their project for the year, Varsity Club purchased a showcase in which to display the pictures of the winning athletic teams.

Girls have broken into another man's sport—scuba diving. This year, three of Scuba Club's 25 members were females. Basic equipment costs about $115, and about half of the members own their equipment. Sponsor Bert Zimmerman took the club on several overnight diving meets in various locations, such as Logansport and St. Paul.

The tank toters sponsored a sock hop, and club members parked cars on race day. These profits will go to buy the club a compressor so members can fill their own tanks. In the future, the group hopes to go to Florida.

Under the supervision of Sponsor Barbara Rudicel, several "Play Days" were held for GAA members. Girls went to other schools and competed in outdoor track and field events. Basketball and volleyball tournaments were held in mid-winter. There was a special volleyball tourney between senior girls and women faculty members. After considerable changing of rules, the faculty won. The GAA sponsored the annual Athletic Dance, and they also held a pitch-in dinner. To raise money, members sold yellow mums for homecoming and later had a cookie sale. The GAA Awards Banquet ended the year for this busy group of girls.

Tuesday night was the time and the gym was the scene for some of the most fabulous (?) basketball games of the year. Forty-five boys actively took part on six teams in intramural, sponsored by Bert Zimmerman and Ralph Johnson. The purpose is to give boys not participating in winter sports a chance to exercise and compete on a team. Sporting names like McGilliard's Poles and Kress' Kingsmen, each team could show its native ability. For the championship game, the Heidenreich Dogs were pitted against mighty Speer's Mets. Though the Mets made a valiant effort, the hardwood battle was won by the Dogs by the tremendous score of 42—35.

Dressed in school colors, brown, white, and gold, girls and boys' Booster Clubs sat together at home and tourney basketball games. Girls Booster Club wore white blouses and formed an "S" with brown capes. Boys wore yellow shirts to balance out the school colors.

These enthusiastic groups numbered well over two hundred. They faithfully followed the varsity basketball squad from game to game cheering all the way. At Zionsville Sectionals, they filled Speedway's cheering section and parts of other sections.

When Frankfort Regionals arrived, the Booster Clubs soared to new heights. Presidents Karen Casper and Bill Cantwell organized a huge boys-girls' booster section of approximately three hundred fifty people. Working hard after school, they took names and collected money from students who wished a seat in the section. One hundred sixty members rode Booster Buses to the Regionals. This was a good year for both Boys and Girls' Booster Clubs . . . one filled with lots of victorious games, as well as tears, and lost voices.

Muscles strain as competitors vie for the lead when the gun goes off to start another two-mile race against the clock.

Senior Earl Woodard fights fatigue as he nears the end of a grueling race.

With a backbone of seven seniors, the 1966 Cross Country team compiled an impressive 6 and 2 record, losing only to Howe and Warren Central, and outdistancing Mooresville, Northwest, Beech Grove, Brownsburg, and Plainfield. The fleet-footed Plugs won the Mid-State, placed third in the County, third in the Southport Invitational, fourth in the Broad Ripple Invitational, and finished sixth in Sectional competition.

This year the Plugs had an exceptionally well-balanced team in seniors Charles Engel, John Heidenreich, Bill Cantwell, Earl Woodard, Steve Englert, John Graub, and Richard Brooks and in juniors Jim Muir and Bruce Samm, and sophomore Don Muir, just to name a few. Without the many firsts of senior Charles Engel, the Plugs could not have achieved such an outstanding record. At the fall sports banquet, Don Muir was voted Most Improved and Charles Engel was named the Most Valuable.

Bruce Samm steps up his pace to stay ahead of Speedway runners, Pete Teagarden and Bill Cantwell.

With only three returning starters, Coach Johnson and many others looked at the 1966 season with some doubt. In the jamboree, their fears were justified when the Plugs lost to Lawrence Central. Then the skeptics were proven wrong, as the Plugs won their next eight games despite numerous injuries. Going into their final game against Plainfield, the Plugs were tied for the Mid-State Conference lead. Their string of wins was broken at eight games, when they lost the Plainfield game and had to settle for second in the Mid-State Conference.

At the fall sports banquet, John Allen was awarded the Most Valuable player and Greg Silver the Most Improved award. At the end of the season, John Allen won first-team honors on the News All-County team for the second year in a row, and Chris Werling earned second-team honors. # Winners at Zionsville Show Skill

Dave Bennett

At the beginning of each basketball season, the Indianapolis Star and News present their annual rundowns of the teams in the city and county. This year their general concensus was that although Speedway had height (five players over 6-3), they were not to be regarded highly in the county race, with John Allen the only returning starter from last year's record-breaking 21—3 squad.

With the first two games against Pike and Lawrence ending in defeat, many thought the sports writers were right. However, the 92—90 overtime loss to the Bears showed this team had something. The common denominator of the Plugs, desire and spirit, was revealed as they got to the semifinal round of the county tourney, being eliminated by Lawrence Central.

The Plugs appeared to have the mid-state crown wrapped up, but gained only a tie by losing a thriller to Center Grove in overtime, 93—91.

When Speedway drew Lebanon in the first sectional game, the majority around SHS concluded that this would be the final game. The team thought different. Using only five players, Coach Morris Pollard guided the team to a thrilling victory over Lebanon and their second sectional crown in three years.

Speedway looked forward to the Frankfort regional where their chances of a regional crown were the best ever. Delphi was silenced quickly, while the Plugs lost the heartbreaking championship game to Bainbridge, 79—71.

At the winter sports banquet, John Allen received the Most Valuable Player and Blase Sportsmanship awards, while Dave Bennett was presented with the Most Improved and Rumble Foul Shot award, and Jim Ehlebracht received the Hanna Scholastic Award.

As the Sparkplugs fought back against Southport, John Allen's third-quarter free throw helped Speedway's futile cause.

Action was hot and furious under the boards as Jim Ehlebracht snares a rebound from the grasp of his Washington opponent.

To Win Mid-State and Sectional

Fast-moving action was the scene as Terry Brush drives his opponents chest to the mat.

Speedway's 1966-67 wrestling team brought home a sectional championship for the first time in Speedway's wrestling history. Seniors John O'Farrell and Kenny Jay won top honors in their weight classes. They then were honored by a trip to the regionals, and placed 4th and 2nd respectively.

With plenty of good material, Mr. Hamilton molded the experienced Plugs into a group of real winners. Speedway ended their fifth season of competition with an impressive 6-4 win-loss record, and another winning season for the Plugs. The varsity wrestling team was headed by seniors Terry Brush, who compiled an 8-10 record; Greg Silver, who earned a 15-5-1 record; John O'Farrell, who ended up with a 22-2 record; Dick Wraight, with a 16-5-1 record; Bob Davis, with a 4-8 record; Kenny Jay, with a 19-4-1 record; and Terry Sarbinoff, who compiled a 16-6 record for the season.

At the winter sports banquet Terry Sarbinoff won the Quickest Pin award; John O'Farrell, the Most Take Downs; Kenny Jay, Most Falls; Mike Crider, Most Promising Freshman; and Greg Silver and Ken Jay, "Mr. Tough Award." Most Valuable went to John O'Farrell and Ken Jay and Most Improved was won by Terry Sarbinoff.

Sparkplug grappler Dick Wraight struggles to get his opponent into position for a pin as the referee moves in to verify the decision.

Winning Seasons for Girls and Boys

Senior swim team members Chris Werling, Bill Cantwell, Connie Cantwell, Richard Brooks, Tom Geiman, and Carl Cunningham accumulated many points for the Sparkplugs.

Girls exhibit enthusiasm by active participation in practice and swim meets.

After four years of swimming at Speedway High School, Coach Zimmerman has compiled a 70.5 win average. The 1967 Swimming team, with only one squad member missing from last year's team, ended the season with a 6—4 won-loss record. The tankers "splashed" their way to a win in the Speedway Invitational meet and finished in fifth place in the Columbus relays. Speedway swimmers had a bit of tough luck in Sectionals this year by not placing anyone in regional competition.

This year, Speedway's only girls' team had a 3—5 won-loss record, but they did exceptionally well in state competition. Debbie Sunier placed 1st in the 100-yard free style, the 50-yard butterfly, and 100-yard butterfly. Sally Smith copped the 50-yard breast stroke. Debbie Sunier was named the Most Outstanding Swimmer in the state meet.

At the Winter Sports Banquet, Tom Geiman won the Distinguished Swimmer award and Don Muir, the Most Improved. For the girls, Debbie Sunier won Most Outstanding Swimmer and Teddi Popcheff, the Most Improved.

Pete Teagarden executes a perfect dive during a dual meet with Pike.

False starts are common to swimmers anxious to take the lead in this highly competitive sport.

Plug Racketeers Steal a Winning Season

SENIORS
FRONT: Ronnie Nelson, Dave Semich, Richard Brooks, James Simons, Coach. BACK: Chris Werling, Steve Kirchhoff, Paul Daniels, Lynn Huber.

Paul Daniels is poised after serving another beauty to his opponent.

Four-year tennis man Steve Kirchhoff returns a serve to keep the game alive.

In one of Speedway's newest sports, this year's tennis team set a record by being the first tennis team to have a winning season. Second-year coach James Simons did a great job, after having only two returning lettermen, Lynn Huber and David Crumley. Lynn Huber held down the number one spot the entire year, while sophomore David Crumley gained much experience with another year of varsity competition.

These two standouts were the backbone of a well-balanced team, who included seniors, Chris Werling, Richard Brooks, Steve Kirchhoff, Ronnie Nelson, and Paul Daniels. The Most Valuable award winner at the spring sports banquet was Lynn Huber. The Most Improved award went to Richard Brooks.

Fastest Men Are Speedway Trackburners

SENIORS

This year's track team came up with another winning season. The 1967 track team was very strong in the distance events, but lacked the speed of a dashman to make it a conference championship team.

However, what they lacked in the dashes they made up in the field events. Senior Tom Johnson, shot-putter, placed third in the State Track Meet with his record of 58 feet 10 1/2 inches. Pole-vaulter Dave Bennett broke the school's pole-vault record for the third year in a row. He soared to 12 feet 3 inches, three inches higher than the old record. Hurdler Kenny Jay set two-records—one in the high hurdles, 15.3, and one in the low hurdles, 21.2. Charles Engel also set a new record in the two-mile run.

The Speedway Cindermen placed third in the Mid-State and sixth in the Marion County Track Meet. At the spring sports banquet, Tom Johnson won the Most Valuable award, and Kenny Jay was named the Most Improved.

Hoping to clear the bar, Kenny Jay leaps with great determination.

Hurling the shot-put, Tom Johnson wins another victory for Speedway and maintains his county championship.

Dave Bennett proves his pole-vaulting ability as he clears the bar with ease.

Hardball Specialists Mid-State Co-Champs

A Zionsville baseman makes an unsuccessful attempt to put out Steve Schein as he races toward first base.

Only two seniors, John Allen and Steve Schein were on the varsity baseball team.

Bill Jett prepares to swing as the Sparkplugs lead 2—0 at the end of the first inning.

This year's varsity baseball team had only one returning letterman, John Allen, and only two seniors on the team. They were backed by ten juniors and five sophomores, which should make next year's team a really great one.

The Plugs had a successful 9—6 win-loss record, which seems to be a habit at Speedway and earned them the Mid-State Co-Championship. Most Valuable award winner, John Allen, proved himself many times in his fielding and hitting ability. This year John received the Most Valuable award in every sport in which he participated—football, basketball, and baseball. Bill Jett won the Most Improved award at the spring sports banquet.

In the Marion County Tourney, Speedway was defeated by Lawrence Central in the second round.

Scott Musgrave is ready to prove he can hit as well as field a ball.

Linksmen Claim Mid-State Championship

Senior linksman, Dick Hoffman, blasts from the sand in hopes that he can still salvage his par.

SENIORS—Jim Ehlebracht, Greg Silver, Dick Hoffman, Danny Harcourt, and Dick Wraight.

Playing their home meets on the Speedway Golf Course, the linksmen ended their 1967 season with an 11—3 win-loss record. The varsity team consisted of four seniors, one junior, and one sophomore. Through the first of the season, the youngest member of the team, Denny Dirks, played number one man. At the end of the season, senior Jim Ehlebracht held down the first spot.

This year's carbon copy of last year's golf team captured the Mid-State Conference title as they did last year, and they placed eighth in sectional competition. At the spring sports banquet, Jim Ehlebracht received Most Valuable award, and Denny Dirks was awarded the Most Improved title.

Athletes Honored for Outstanding Year

Darrell Rains, Jim Muir, and Rick Arango receive the trophies presented by the Merchants Association for the juniors with the most achievement points in sports.

The Most Valuable tennis player award was presented to Lynn Huber by the tennis coach, James Simons.

Chris Werling receives a trophy and warm hand shake from Football Coach Ralph Johnson for being Outstanding Defensive Player.

The Lineman-of-the-Year Award went to Dick Wraight who accepted the award from William Clark.

After a few words of commendation from Ralph Johnson, John Allen receives the Most Valuable football player award. He also won the most Valuable award in basketball and baseball and was named Marion County Athlete of the Year by the Indianapolis Star.

Charles Engel gives his mother a beautiful corsage after he was named the Most Valuable cross country runner.

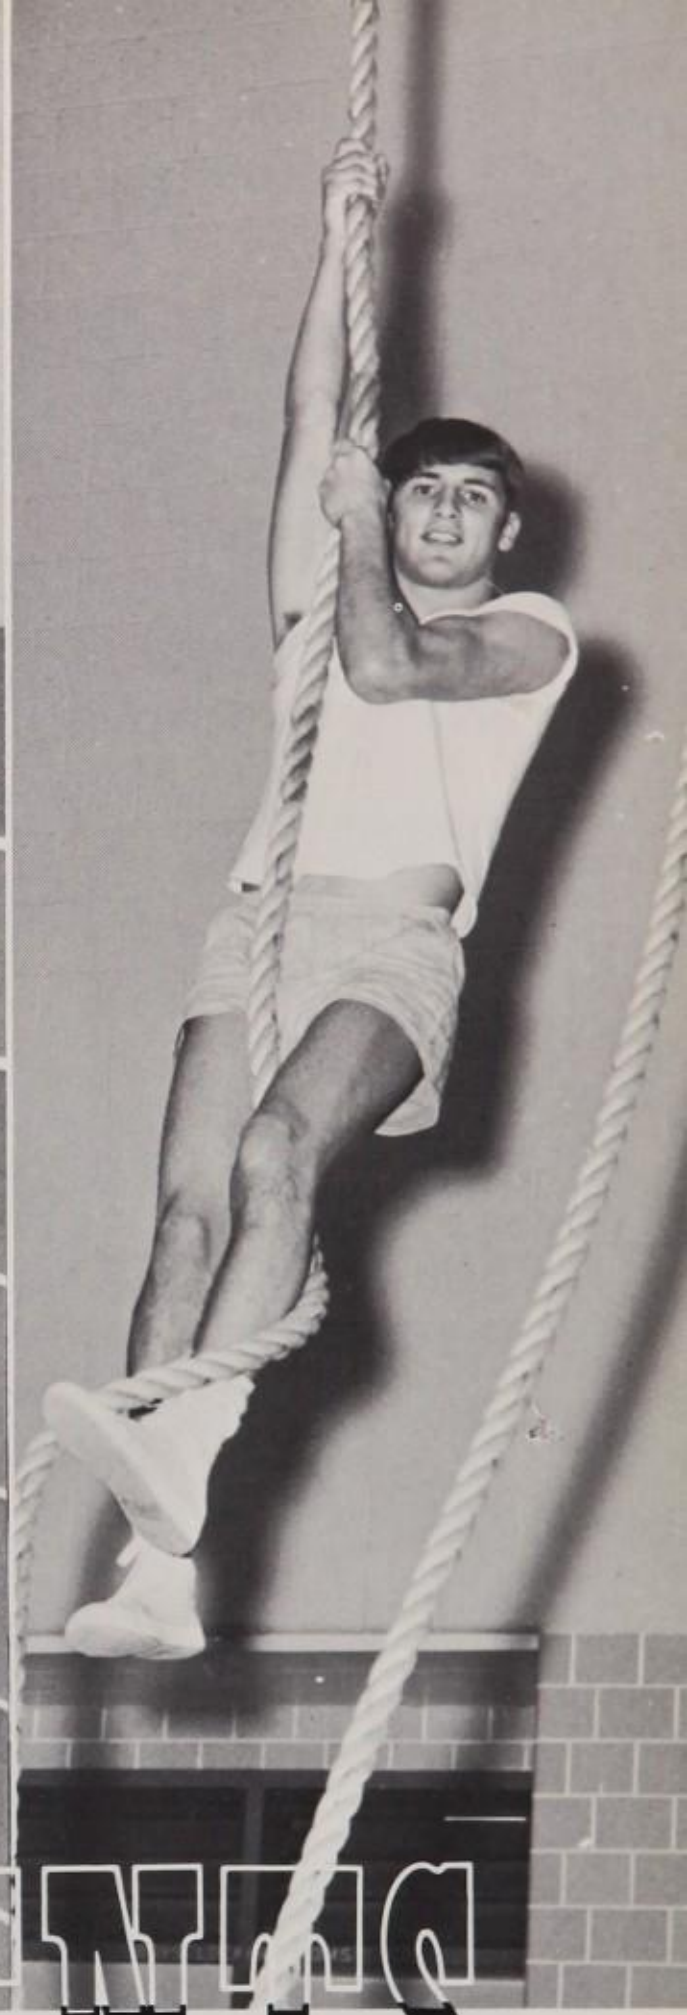

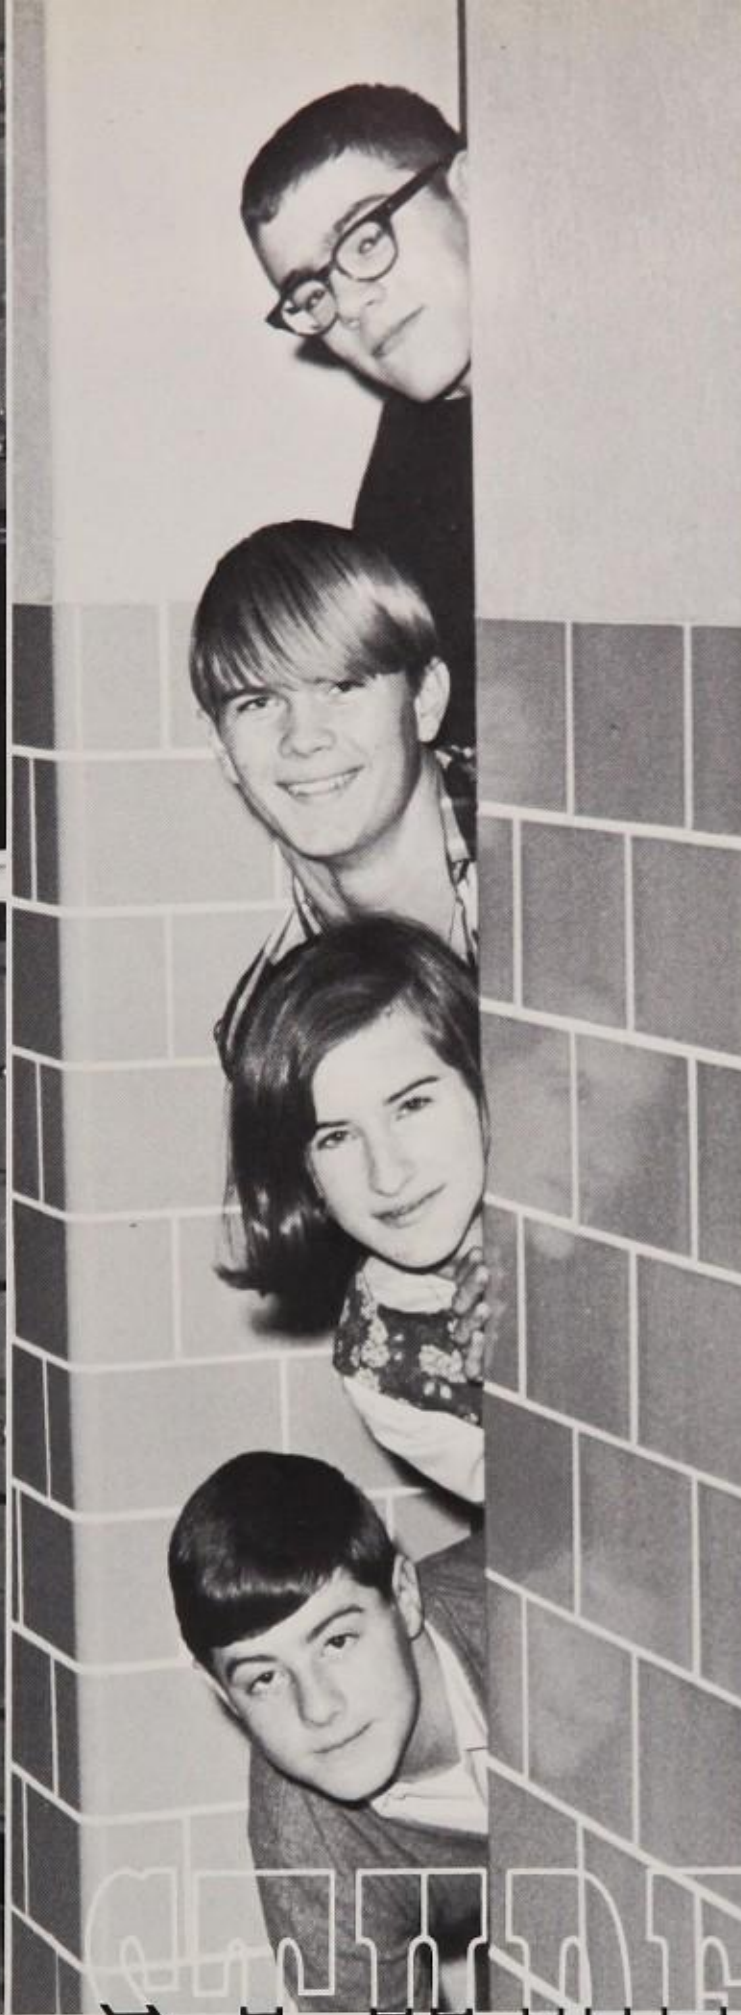

A much-deserved trophy was given to Tom Johnson by John Owensby for being Most Valuable in track after he placed third in the State in shot-put.

As 211 scared freshmen entered S.H.S. for the first time last fall, the door to a variety of new experiences was opened to them. Introduced to high school society, they became familiar with blue slips, pink slips, and finally the dreaded ninth hour.

Taking all the appropriate freshman courses, they tried to make the new and harder A and B Honor Rolls. Many studied industriously to achieve the twenty honor points necessary to have their names placed on the A Honor Roll, while others were content to earn only the fifteen points necessary for the B Honor Roll.

High school life was not all drudgery though. Freshmen at once became active in high school functions. This "eager beaver" class took an active part in sports, clubs, and bands. With pride that one of their classmates made the varsity basketball squad, they attended games and backed teams and booster clubs.

Although the freshman year is said to be the roughest year of high school life, this class showed good sportsmanship both in athletic events and in the ribbing all freshmen must suffer.

Often the sophomore year is noted as one of the most difficult of the four years. At this awkward age, sophomores find they are more experienced than the green freshmen; still, few upperclassmen want anything to do with them. This did not hinder the independent '69ers, however.

Theirs was the only class to build a football homecoming float. Many became adept speakers by participating in student theatre plays, speech contests, and the required speech class. During December, sophomores were given a chance to determine their mental capabilities by taking the day-and-a-half long SRA tests. The Class of 1969 also sponsored a belated Valentine's Day dance on February 18 entitled "Cupid's Caper."

After spring vacation, several vehicles were added to the school parking lot as a few lucky sophomores obtained their coveted drivers' licences. During the month of May, the halls buzzed as sophs pondered their ring selections. At the end of the year, 200 sophomores anxiously awaited the few months until they would be upperclassmen.

Hard work was the key to success as 212 juniors took reams and reams of notes in the required United States history course. The class backed athletics, especially basketball with half the varsity team being juniors. They also participated very actively in bands, choruses, and plays. Prom planning was started early by committees.

Accelerated juniors had their first encounter with team teaching in the fourth year honor English class. Fifty juniors took the Merit Scholarship Test and even more took the May SAT to ready themselves for college entrance.

However, all was not work and study the entire year. Ball games, parties, dances, and week ends provided juniors with leisure activities. As the year neared a close, the Class of 1968 sponsored the well-received prom entitled "Arabian Night." The year was climaxed by a number of juniors being inducted into the National Honor Society, as well as the handing down of the gavel to junior president, Doug Rosebrock.

End of Year Brings Joy and Sorrow

Leading the senior class in their scholastic standings, valedictorian Bonnie Turnbaugh and salutatorian Donna Tyler deliver the traditional speeches at the Senior Day program.

Joyce DeWitt is stubborn as she sings "I Can't Say No" at the Senior Day program.

Senior boys back their basketball team at the Booster Breakfast early in the year.

Many "spirit-building" posters decorated the halls of S.H.S. during tourney time.

Talent booms at the Senior Day program as John McDaniels and Gary McNeil play and sing songs they composed themselves.

to Every Senior Student

Dignified seniors take time from studies to "horse around" on the Meadowood Park playground equipment.

Becky Sutherlin sings at the Senior Day program.

Active senior boys became royal candidates for the 1967 Athletic Dance.

The Class of '67 was well presented by class historians Ronnie Stewart and Karen Casper.

SENIOR OFFICERS

Confident, yet hesitant, triumphant but apprehensive, curious and not quite sure of his next step, the senior stands poised on the brink of what he hopes will be success. Memories of an encouraging word from a teacher, of proudly singing the school song, of listening to Mr. Thompson reading the morning announcements, of receiving the coveted diploma on June the fifth, of being the first to go all the way through the new high school, of having one of the highest scholastic records of any graduating class will never be forgotten.

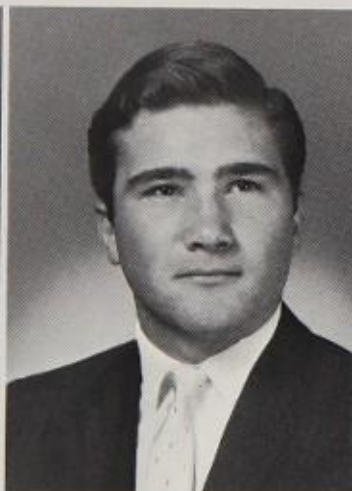

They have enjoyed the title of senior and have wondered how fitting it was. Some seniors expressed the idea of not feeling the part of a senior, but more of a freshman or sophomore. Yet many indications such as selecting invitations, caps, and gowns; of enjoying the "senior only" dance; of parading to the rhythm of "Pomp and Circumstance" pointed clearly to attaining this unique title.

Seniors began to contemplate the immediate future and a life beyond Speedway High School, for the end only marks the beginning. Much is to be learned and many challenges are to be faced. Speedway seniors know their education has been the best, and for this they are more than grateful.

Seniors Receive the Reward

Dr. William E. Kerstetter, President of DePauw University, delivers the commencement address to the 1967 graduates.

For a lasting memory, Paul Daniels writes a few notes in a senior composite album.

James Hardin, President of the School Board, congratulates Paul Daniels on receiving his diploma.

Many serious thoughts about the future race through seniors' heads as Dr. Kerstetter reminds them of the new adult world they are about to enter.

Tom Smith finds his robe awkward as he reaches for his pants pocket, while Nick Rudman has trouble with his cap.

for Four Years of Hard Work

Connie Cantwell is all smiles as she receives her diploma from Mr. Hardin.

Waiting for the processional to begin, seniors stand for the last time in the halls which they have known so well for the last four years.

In Room 225, seniors gather one last time to don their caps and gowns.

Following the trend of school colors, each girl receives a beautiful yellow rose. Donna Tyler, Nancy Zeph, and Diana Lippard admire theirs.

The processional went smoothly despite the fears of the seniors.

Zero Defects in Life

Those who are familiar with industry in Speedway recognize that many companies such as Esterline Angus strive for zero defects. Simply put, this means doing a job without errors.

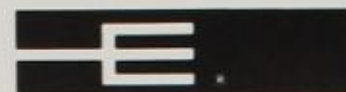

In industry, zero defects involve training employees to think about perfection, to instill in them the idea that error-free work is possible and desirable.

In your high school days, you have strived for perfection on every examination. Some have accomplished or nearly accomplished this objective.

Striving for perfection is a natural human quality. Those who strive hardest in future studies and in future jobs will attain the highest goals.

Finally, SPEEDWAY IS . . . leaving. Each year new doors are opened and new friendships are made. Nothing is quite like the classrooms, games, and parties of high school life. All these and more will be missed by the departing seniors. But new students take over next year, and little will be changed.

Good luck . . . and farewell!
